Strangers Arrive

A total of seventy-nine backpacked strangers began to straggle into Camp Redwing around the eighth hour of the fourteenth day of the sixth month in the year nineteen hundred and ninety eight. Because of the arrival of these strangers the forty one highly trained staff members were involuntarily put into action. The staff have mixed emotions (happy, sad, tired) about the arrival.

Questionable Death

Timmy Tenderfoot, an eager and honorary staff member, was supposedly killed by a blazing inferno. However, an autopsy has revealed more questions than it has answers. The major discrepancy is whether he ate potato chips before or after the burn. Further answers may come as the staff puts its best foot forth to find out what really happened in the burn. A new doctor has been hired because the first one was fired. He screamed for hours; we mean he is looking for a new job.

Poor Baby!

We intercepted a disturbing phone call about a mother who could not stop weeping for her child. Her son was abducted into White Stag. She cried for half an hour non-stop (we just left the phone hanging there). She kept saying "You Stole My Son." It wasn't what it appeared to be, because she was weeping for joy. Due to this message all phone lines have been shut down indefinitely to let distressed mothers calm down.

Blurp!

Mysteriously none of the White Stag Staff have heard any water run in the shower house. (Hint, Hint)
